how does the historian approach primary sources how do interpretations differ how can they be used to write history reading primary sources goes a long way to providing answers for these questions in the first part of this unique volume the chapters give an overview of both traditional and new methodological approaches to the use of sources analyzing the way that these have changed over time the second part gives an overview of twelve different types of written sources including letters opinion polls surveillance reports diaries novels newspapers and dreams taking into account the huge expansion in the range of written primary sources used by historians over the last thirty years this book is an up to date introduction into the historical context of these different genres the ways they should be read the possible insights and results these sources offer and the pitfalls of their interpretation all of the chapters push the reader beyond a conventional understanding of source texts as mere reflections of a given reality instead fostering an understanding of how each of the various genres has to be seen as a medium in its own right taking examples of sources from around the globe and also including a student friendly further reading section this is the perfect companion for every student of history who wants to engage with sources texts act like receptacles for an ever present remembered past or what the french philosopher paul ricœur calls the present representation of an absent thing they might embody an efficient remedy to forgetting but could also become a vivid testimony for exorcised traumas this volume focuses on ricœur s phenomenology of memory epistemology of history and hermeneutics of forgetting a special emphasis is laid on the dissension between individual and collective institutional memory against the background of a changing world order colonial powers frequently challenged pan africanism and the reasonable arguments voiced in pan african congresses in pan africanism visions initiatives and transformations mano delea highlights how pan africanism moved its epicenter as the circumstances of world politics changed from the diaspora to africa where it was transformed and institutionalized unlike other research done on pan africanism delea offers three new additions to this academic research by addressing and analyzing the responses of leading historical newspapers to the pan african congresses from 1900 to 1945 examining the transformation of and division between pan africanism as a social movement and as an institutionalized phenomenon and discussing the epistemologies and knowledge production within pan africanism throughout its history bachelor thesis from the year 2011 in the subject history of europe middle ages early modern age grade merit university of hull course history language english abstract the thirty years war embodied the impact of protestantism to the peculiar route of state development of the empire and subsequently the peculiarity of the development of political theories from the example of the empire the war was the last of a violent wave of political reforms which rode on the tide of ecclesiastical reformation a tide which ravaged europe since martin luther the german reformation was both an ideological and political movement that pitted the protestant against the catholics including the emperor it was pacified in mid 16th century but restarted and escalated during the thirty years war like the conflict of the 1540 s in the empire and late 16th century europe the war was partly a political struggle between territorialism and central power in this case between the protestant princes and the holy roman emperor parallel to the center peripheral struggle as both the provincial protestants and the emperor s adherents were equipped with exclusive moral philosophies it cleaved two irreconcilable and mutually suspicious factions within the constitution thus the end of the war there breeds a secular political innovation a middle way comprises of both protestants and catholics without ecclesiastical conflicts that need to be resolved outside of the legal institution under a catholic theocracy which was a fundamentally exclusive federation before 1648 the peculiarity of the thirty years war to continental europe was that its outcome the peace of westphalia unlike the other religious edicts has not only shattered the ambiguity of a medieval feudal theocratic structure that was the imperial constitution it has also rejuvenated the holy roman empire s unity from within its peculiar medieval structure the old feudal representative structure embedded in the constitution was furthered and therefore spared the empire s need to eliminate but to include the protestant opposition in a german federation this development inspired legal political theorists such as samuel pufendorf and statesmen to envision rational defined states based on the hitherto model of the empire a quasi secular legal system thus the implication of the peace was both political and philosophical first it reformed and consolidated imperial structure secondly it implied a separate model distinguished from the rest western europe for contemporary political philosophers concerning with how the state should behave morally
